

An extensive index seemed necessary, as interpretation of the forms of the words is sometimes essential for analysis and reconstruction of the text. Although this was not meant as a dictionary, but only as an index, an indication of the meanings of the words is also given. It was ready in a first draft when Insler's book appeared and then it was decided to keep it, as it is indispensable for this book, and as it gives more information than Insler's index.

Where the meaning is doubtful, that found in the translation of Humbach is given first, that found in Lommel (1971) after a semicolon, when it differs. Then follows the column of the AirWb. The meaning given in the AirWb is not included: it is either the same as that used by the translators, or, if different, it is mostly out of date. Sometimes the meaning assumed by other scholars is given, but not consistently.

The interpretation of the grammatical forms of the words is principally that of Humbach. Lommel's is mostly indicated, too, Insler's often, but not all of his many suggestions have been included.

The order is that of the Latin alphabet, deviating signs or characters following the Latin letter (thus \tilde{a} follows a and ϑ follows t), so:

a \tilde{a} \tilde{a} \tilde{a} b β c δ e/ \tilde{e} \tilde{a} / \tilde{e} f g γ h i/ \tilde{i} j k m n η o/ \tilde{o} p r s \tilde{s} t \tilde{t} ϑ u/ \tilde{u} v w x x^v y z \tilde{z} .

Note that \tilde{a} follows a, but that with e, \tilde{a} , i, o, u the long vowels intermingle with the short.

Words of uncertain interpretation are given as such, not under a stem or root.
